Never Since Our Advent in Business

—HAS THE—

PEOPLE'S STORE

Known Such a Volume of Business

DURING THE MONTH OF JULY.

We have exceeded the expectations of our business, and the result has been beyond our utmost anticipation. There is no use talking, the people know when and where they can get bargains. Our Summer Goods are fast coming to a close. No wonder! Goods that sold for 25c marked down to 12½c.

THE PEOPLE'S STORE

Success is mainly due to the fearless slaughter of Goods that its proprietors find necessary at the close of every season, to enable them to go into the market with ready cash in hand to take advantage of what it offers, instead of coming with crestfallen mien and a heavy stock of Summer Goods in hand like our neighbors, and in an imploring manner and poverty-stricken tone, beg for Goods on credit. Go and trade with a house that is Straightforward and Honest.

Go to a house that advertises an article and when you come there you will find it on sale. Go to the PEOPLE'S STORE. It has withstood the broadside of all the attacks of its scurrilous neighbors, and its flag floats at its masthead, and Prosperity Greets It Daily.

It has not swerved to the right nor to the left. It minds its own business, and in doing that it keeps proprietors and employes as busy as it can be. Every day new evidences and reasons are shown why you should trade there. If you drop in this week and see our Cheap Goods you will be astonished.

AMERICAN FRUIT EVAPORATOR!

The most practical and reliable Fruit Evaporator made. It gives unobstructed hot air currents ABOVE and BELOW all fruit, thus insuring evenness of drying and no discoloring of fruit. Beware of infringements. THE AMERICAN is pre-eminently the fruit-raisers' machine. Its sizes grade from domestic to manufacturing wants. It makes the highest quality of work with ordinary care in handling. There is no need of making anything else. Though we approve a slight use of sulphur, the AMERICAN is specially adapted for highest grade in unbleached work. It places fresh cut fruit first in highest and dryest heat; cures cut surfaces at once and keeps them dry, thereby setting and making permanent the color, and also thereby, as in broiling steaks, securing the best quality in product. We our experience in evaporating at the disposal of our customers. In some cases the gratuitous service is of more value than prices paid us for evaporators. Sold by

Throat Diseases, Bronchitis, Asthma AND CONSUMPTION,

Together with the Eye, Ear and Heart; Also All Chronic Diseases, and Particularly Those Located in Females, Successfully Treated by

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M. D.,

M. C. P. S. O.

Graduate of Victoria College, Toronto, Ontario; Member of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario; for three years Associate Physician of the Chicago and Cincinnati Throat and Lung Institutes; for fifteen years, and still, proprietor of the Detroit Throat and Lung Institute; also Associate Physician in and for the State of Michigan, and for several years Proprietor of the Ontario Pulmonary Institute and Health Resort at Toronto, Ontario. Over 80,000 cases treated by us during the past nineteen years.

In order to show how successfully lung diseases and throat troubles are properly treated, we give the testimonial of one who is well and favorably known by many of the people of Los Angeles. From Rev. L. S. Parks, D. D., President Albion College, Albion, Mich.; Forsyth, Rankin & Co., Bankers, Detroit, Mich., and editor of the Christian Advocate:

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 22, 1877.

DR. WILLIAMS—Dear Sir: I am glad to add my testimony of the benefit of the treatment my son has received. In the Spring of 1877, he was at the age of 20 years, suffering from a severe affection of the bronchial tubes and lungs, so as to be compelled to keep his room, and the most of the time his bed. Within the space of two weeks he experienced above a dozen hemorrhages, from which the ordinary remedies afforded but temporary relief. I applied to you who supplied him with the inhaling medicines, which effected an immediate arrest of the bleeding, and which has under your careful care since he began the inhalation. Respectfully, L. R. PARKS.

CONSULTATION FREE—Those who desire to consult with me in regard to their cases can do so either personally or by correspondence and examination, but if impossible to do so you can write for a copy of my Medical Treatise, containing a list of questions, sent free.

DISEASES OF THE RECTUM

Female and Chronic Diseases a Specialty.

Rectal Ulcers, Hemorrhoids or Piles Fissure, Fistula in Ano, Pruritus or so-called Itching Piles, Polypus, Incontinency of Feces, Stricture, etc.

Dr. A. W. Brinkerhoff's System of Rectal Treatment.

A SURE AND PAINLESS SYSTEM FOR all the above diseases without cutting, ligating, burning, taking medicine or detention from business. Dr. Brinkerhoff has over 40,000 operations for piles and not one death. The knife, ligature, ecraseur, hot iron and escharotic treatment are the only weapons in use to-day for the treatment of piles.

We can treat you without using any of these barbarities and guarantee a cure in every case.

Thousands die annually from what is called CONSUMPTION, heart, liver, kidney diseases, etc., while the cause is unknown, seldom, never brought to light. We ask the sick and suffering to investigate the cause of the same back, affected kidneys, vaginal, womb, urinary, heart, lung, stomach, liver and head troubles; rheumatism, benumbed limbs and bloated abdomen, dyspepsia, biliousness and tendency to malaria, and they will find RECTAL ULCERATION the hidden monster—the foe to human health and happiness.

The existence of Rectal Ulcers is as old as the race, and surgeons from time to time have written of them, but have been unable to SEE THEM. We have instruments by which the rectum can be clearly and intelligently examined, and without pain or danger to the patient. The invention of these instruments by Dr. A. W. BRINKERHOFF, of Upper Sandusky, Ohio, has opened wide the door to the successful treatment of this malady, and has established the fact, after examining more than twenty thousand patients suffering with all the various complaints found in chronic diseases of both sexes, that Rectal Ulceration existed in every case. With our system of treatment we cure the ulceration, if not too far advanced, and the train of symptoms and misery disappear.

Come and investigate! Our practice is not experimental, as it has been years of work. We know what we see. Charges reasonable.

The Times.

Office—Temple, Main and New High.

SUB-TREASURER BROOKS, at San Francisco, is, on the subject of appointments, like the poor boy at a husking—he has nothing to say.

SANTA BARBARA'S warmest day this summer is put down at 85 degrees. The Zenith City approaches in comfort the salubrious coolness of Sacramento.

COLONEL R. C. CLOWRY, Vice President and General Superintendent for the Western Union Telegraph Company, with his party, comprising other officials telegraphic, left San Francisco yesterday, bound for Los Angeles. They are on a tour of inspection of all the principal lines and offices on the Pacific Coast.

IT is announced in our dispatches to-day that a daily line of steamers between San Diego and San Francisco is to be established by the Atlantic and Pacific Company as soon as their through line is opened up to San Diego. This will complete their competition with the Southern Pacific line for the business of San Francisco and the coast.

NOTWITHSTANDING the heat of midday, our mornings, evenings and nights are refreshingly cool. Sleep can be had without discomfort, and there is no drawback upon our rest. We have no just reason for complaint, if there is a semi-torrid grip upon our thermometers for a brief space at midday; its grasp is not long enough to be exhausting. We should call this the most glorious kind of summer weather on the Atlantic coast.

PREMIER SALISBURY was yesterday waited upon by a delegation of English sugar manufacturers and requested to retaliate in some manner upon the United States for its protective tariff on sugar. The Premier said that England's free-trade policy would not allow of any retaliation. Indeed, without import duties, the government was deprived of any offensive weapon. But he hoped that, in time, all foreign nations would come to England's way of thinking about free trade. A pious hope, but one not likely to be realized in the case of the United States.

THE Hon. Barclay Hanley, of Mexico, is to be tendered a reception by his admirers of the Stockton Convention wing of the California Democracy, at the Grand Opera House, San Francisco, next Monday. Out of compliment to the distinguished foreign guest now temporarily sojourning in the United States, the gentlemen present will all be dressed in short, gaily-trimmed jackets, real sombreros and calzoneros, and speak only the pure Castilian. "God and Liberty!" "Mexico and Maximilian!" "Hanley el Hispano-American!" will be the slogans sounded on the occasion.

A BAD ACCIDENT.

The Stumbling of a Horse, and What It Caused.

At about 4:30 yesterday afternoon Mrs. J. W. Hanby started to drive down town from her home at the corner of Fifth and Boundry streets, back of the woolen mill. In the carriage with her were her niece (who does not wish her name to appear) and Mrs. C. C. Moore and five-year-old daughter. Mr. Hanby led the horse across the little bridge over the woolen-mill ditch, to the beginning of the rather steep descent on Fifth street, and then turned back homeward, saying, "Now you have it." The mare, a pacer, started down the slope, but directly stumbled and fell flat, overturning the carriages. All the occupants were thrown violently out. Mrs. Hanby's right leg was fractured just at the top of her shoe, both bones being broken. Her niece and the little girl escaped unhurt. Mrs. Moore, whose husband is employed at the Spring street, sustained a severe scalp-wound. Mrs. Hanby was carried to her home, and Dr. J. S. Baker attended to her injuries. She is subject to heart disease, and could not take an anæsthetic, but bore bravely the pain of setting the bones. At 10 o'clock last night, when a TIMES reporter called, she was resting as easily as could be expected.

The buggy was broken all to pieces by the mare's kicks to extricate herself, and the mare was not in the least injured.

The third race, one mile and seventy yards was won by Strathspey, with Dessy Duck second, Emma Manly third. Time, 1:49¾.

The fourth race, five furlongs, was won by Rob and Rye, with Mamie Hunt second and Bluestone third. Time, 1:04¾.

The fifth race, one mile and a half, over six hurdles, was won by Farquin, with Glenarm second and Mystic third. Time, 2:56¾.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—The second day of the fall trotting meeting of the Bay District Association was held to-day. The race for a purse of $600, 2:40 class, three heats in five, was won by Monie in straight heats; time 2:35¼, 2:35¼, 2:36.

Drowned by Inches.

VALLEJO, Aug. 5.—It has been ascertained that the old fisherman Johnson, found drowned in the mud a short distance from Georgia street wharf yesterday, met a most terrible death. An examination to-day shows that he fell out of his small boat on the mud flat while trying to board his large boat at anchor the night before; that the small boat drifted away, and being unable to climb into the larger one, he attempted to wade ashore. After going a few steps he sank to his middle in the soft mud, and there he remained until the incoming tide slowly crept up his body and covered his face. His screeches for help were heard by some Greek fishermen, but they did not think it was from a man in distress.

Cholera.

MADRID, Aug. 5.—Throughout Spain yesterday 4262 new cases of cholera were reported and 1570 deaths. In the city of Teruel on Monday last 91 new cases and 30 deaths were reported, and in the province of Teruel, outside of the city, 376 new cases and 141 deaths. In the city of Madrid the cholera is confined now to the populous districts inhabited by the poor.

Judge Reardon Dead.

ORO VILLE, Cal., Aug. 5.—Judge T. B. Reardon died last night of cerebral softening. He was a pioneer of the State, having crossed the plains in 1849. He has occupied many positions of honor and trust in the State, was Judge of the Fourteenth Judicial district two terms, and for the past five years has been practising his profession in this place. His funeral takes place Friday next.

OUTPOURING OF PEOPLE ON THE LINE.

Coins Placed on the Railroad Track to be Flattened by the Passing Train and Kept as Mementoes.

Associated Press Dispatches to The Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 5.—A committee of one hundred prominent citizens of New York city, appointed by Mayor Grace to represent their city at Albany, and to accompany the remains from this city to New York city, has arrived. Across the lappel of the black coat of each member of the committee is a white satin badge, at the top of which are the words, "City of New York;" underneath this the arms of the city, and at the bottom, "General Grant." The committee wear white hats with black bands.

The steel casket, built at Troy, was completed last evening. Thousands of people have visited the works during the past few days. Night and day work has progressed, and neither time nor expense has been spared to complete the work successfully. The casket was shipped this morning from West Troy.

VIEWED BY SIXTY THOUSAND PEOPLE.

ALBANY, Aug. 5.—The files of people, who began passing the remains of General Grant in the Senate corridor at the capitol when the doors were first thrown open yesterday afternoon, had not diminished at midnight. After 1 o'clock the crowds lessened, and at 2 o'clock the guards on duty by the coffin began to relax and stand at ease. After 3 o'clock the numbers were less and less. There was a comparative respite until 5 o'clock, when the stragglers were reinforced, and when it was 6 o'clock 51,300 persons had viewed the remains, and a solid tide was again flowing. Two streams of visitors were surging past the casket. The line outside the capitol building increased with the hours, until, at 10 o'clock, people four abreast reached down Washington avenue a full block, where coming throngs were formed in line by a strong force of police. At 10 o'clock it was estimated that the remains were viewed by one hundred persons per minute, and that up to that hour 60,000 persons had seen the face of the dead General.

DEPARTURE FROM ALBANY.

At 10:30 o'clock this forenoon the Capitol doors were swung shut. Undertakers gave last look charge, and as far as possible, prepared the remains for the last stage of the journey. Slowly the funeral car, drawn by six black horses with their mourning trappings, moved to the State-street side of the Capitol. At 11:20 the great door of the Capitol swung open on the State-street side, and the guard of honor from U. S. Grant Post were seen by the waiting crowds with the remains inside the corridor. At this moment the guard of honor moved out into the open light to strains of music and the sound of trumpets of the regulars. Thirteen men carried the casket. The scabbard was waiting at the foot of the stairs in the street. Four men were inside the car and assisted in lifting the remains to the black draw within the mounted catafalque. The Grand Army guards took position, trumpets rang out and the procession started at a measured pace down State street, the various organizations falling into form. The procession reached Broadway amid a dull boom of cannon and the tolling and chiming of bells in the steeples. The line of march through Broadway to Steuben street, and thence to the depot, was everywhere densely thronged. The sons of General Grant and their companions of yesterday were driven to the depot, where the long black funeral train was awaiting its burden. General Hancock and D. M. Kendrick were in charge. Guns boomed while the remains were being placed in the car "Woodlawn," and bells tolled slowly. The committee from New York secured their seats and the train started.

The remains were viewed in Albany by 77,200 persons.

THE TRAIN LEAVES ALBANY.

At the instant the train started a dirge came up from the band of the Jackson Corps, which stood in line and saluted. The long line of persons standing near the track laid coins on the rails to have them flattened beneath the wheels of the train. On the roofs of houses in the vicinity hundreds witnessed the start, and as the black train rumbled across the long bridge of the Hudson it was between two solid walls of people who filled out the paths on either side. There was no clang of bell, no scream of whistle, only the dull rumble of the wheels beneath the memorable train. Across the river were crowds of people. The shops and stores and factories had closed their doors to them, and the occupants, with work and those of leisure seemed to have come out to stand with uncovered heads to be a part of the scene. The long, sweeping curve was rounded and the train straightened out, leaving with the Hudson on its way to the metropolis.

THE PASSING POUGHKEEPSIE.

All of the employes of the New York Central Railway Company who receive their pay at Poughkeepsie were drawn up beside the work-train at that station, and every brown and blue-shirted fellow stood with uncovered head as the train bearing the remains of General Grant passed. A long train of flat-cars filled with sight-seers stood upon the side track. Each man with only one leg, and with a Grand Army badge upon his coat, leaned upon a crutch near the track, while his uncovered head was bowed upon his breast. He didn't look up as the train rumbled past.

After Poughkeepsie had been passed, over the surface of the river there came black shadows and the water was feathering with deeper ripples. A little later, as Newburg was passed, the mountains were enveloped by clouds that poured down rain.

Fishkill was passed on time at 3:13 o'clock, and when the train had gone by people were seen hurrying upon the track to pick up coins which they had placed upon the rails to be beaten flat by the wheels. In the shadow of the old Storm King, at Cornwall, a steamboat from New York, loaded with people, was seen following the train.

Cold Springs had been passed at 3:21 o'clock and West Point was only six minutes away. Col. Grant, Gen. Porter and others in the car took seats in the Riverside car. The river was being ruffled as the train bore down among the highlands, and soon was heard the roll of thunder echoed among the mountains. The storm had broken directly above the military post. The train rolled on and was passing through the deep cut just north of the garrison, which is the railway station for West Point.

Suddenly the report of a cannon shook the heavy atmosphere. The speed was slackened as the station was neared and again there was a heavy sound from the gun. The train's speed was lessened gradually as it emerged from the cut and hundreds of people were seen lining the way on either side, but there was no cheer of the bell nor any shriek of the whistle. At 3:27 the train rolled slowly past the little station at the garrison and there was shown a tribute from his old student home to the dead soldier. Alongside the railway, before the station the cadets from West Point were drawn up in line at "present arms." All officers of the post were near with uncovered heads, and the band from the post, with muffled drums, was playing "Sweet Spirit, Hear My Prayer." The strains were subdued and they mingled with the muttering thunder over the river on the mountains where the storm was raging, and all the while, at intervals of five seconds, came the sound of guns. The little station passed out of sight, and the strains from the band died away.

OVERTAKEN BY THE STORM

The funeral train had again quickened its speed, but it was overtaken by the storm, which prevailed with much force for ten minutes.

The palisades were passed, and at 4:37 the black train swept around the curve and left the Hudson behind. Rain was falling on Harlem High Bridge, when though a splendid vantage ground for observation was occupied by few people when the train passed.

The Junction was rounded at 4:48 and the funeral train had made its last curve down through the Harlem tunnel. The train rumbled toward the city. Emerging from the tunnel, the engine made a flying switch, and the train rolled on to its last point slowly. It stopped at length as the Grand Central clock dial marked five. It was still on time. General Grant's last journey was ended.

IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Hurrying crowds sought shelter from the driving rain under the eaves of the Grand Central Depot twenty minutes before 5 o'clock, deploring the mischance that would turn the parade into a weary tramp through a drenching storm. Their fears were groundless. Brighter skies showed in the west when the funeral train rolled into the depot. Military methods had indeed proved infallible. The escort was ready and at the door promptly. At the stroke of 5 the dark clouds rolled over and the sun broke forth, illuminating the glass-covered arch as the train moved in. Veterans carried the remains as tenderly as a loved child from the car to a light push-cart brought down from Woodlawn for the purpose, and drew it up the incline platform and across to the west side of the depot to the vehicle that was to be the last on which the body would ever ride. With the bearers walked six of the Loyal Legion and two Grand Army men. The martial tread of armed men echoed behind. A company of the Fifth Artillery and Company E, of the Twelfth Infantry regulars, whom the government had sent as a body guard of honor, marched in the escort. General Hancock and his suite had left the train from the opposite side, and passed through the gate into the depot third street, where horses were waiting. They mounted and then galloped to the head of the procession on Fifth avenue, below Thirty-fourth street. The three sons of General Grant left the depot quietly. All others who had come with the train followed the remains out in double file. The citizens' committee of one hundred, led by ex-Mayor Franklin Edson and Jackson S. Schultz, walking next, followed the regulars. Behind them were Governor Hill and General Farnsworth, with his glittering staff, and then turn the committees of the House and Senate at Albany. In Forty-third street waited. Eight steps led up to the raised platform upon which the veterans placed down the coffin with its wreath of oak leaves. It bore no other mark or ornament save its golden plate. Their duty done, the veterans stepped down and took their stand beside the catafalque. The clash of troops presenting arms and the mournful strains of a dirge played by the government band had greeted the appearance of the casket in the doorway. A file of soldiers of the Second Artillery regiment was drawn up across the street, and on the opposite curb from the portal to the catafalque. As the casket was borne between them the crowds behind the militiamen uncovered, and the mellow sunlight fell upon thousands of bowed heads. Then the heavy tread of the regulars broke the stillness as they marched up to take their places beside the catafalque. Twelve colored men seized the reins of twelve horses that were arrayed in black like the hearse, and standing beside them, awaited the signal.

THE PROCESSION IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—After a wait of half an hour the procession started. The head of the cortege was far down Fifth avenue when the order to move was given, the stalwart figure of General Hancock being in the lead. A block in front of the forty mounted police cleared the street. Every stoop and railing that might furnish a point of observation was crowded. Every dismantled lamp post had its tenant, and on telegraph and electric light poles boys hung like knots on ropes. Everywhere as the column passed heads were bowed. The huge crowd was silent and absolutely without violence. From the rear was heard the quarreling of the police and the crowd, but when the procession passed, all was quiet save the steady tramp of the marchers, the rumble of heavy guns, the roll of muffled drums and the mournful dirges played by the bands. Many houses on Fifth Avenue, notably Mrs. A. T. Stewart's, were handsomely draped in mourning.

As the procession entered Broadway, black became profuse and drapes were everywhere seen at half mast. The crowds down town were denser, too, and the police had greater difficulty in repressing them. More than an hour was consumed in reaching the Hall. When the procession arrived at the Park, at 7 o'clock the space on the plaza, directly in front of the steps leading up were heavily draped. The portico of the City Hall had been kept clear by the police, but the walks through the Park and the sidewalk outside were packed. General Hancock and staff moved into the park, followed by the Twenty-second Regiment, and the steps and passed into the building. Here, beneath the canopy of black with which the rotunda of the Hall was covered, he was met by Mayor Grace and escorted to the Mayor's office. The Twenty-second Regiment was drawn up on either side of the entrance, and a moment later the carriage containing the Grant party rolled up to the steps. Dr. Douglas, Dr. Newman and General Porter were the first to alight. After them came the funeral car. As it passed in front of the portico and preparations were made for taking the coffin from its resting place and bore it into the City Hall. There, beneath the catafalque, the men who bore the coffin laid down their burden. Col. Fred Grant, U. S. Grant, Jr., and Jesse Grant, dressed in black, followed the body into the Hall. Then came the committee of 100, representing the city of New York, legislative committee and members of the Common Council of Albany and others. Night had now settled down upon the train and electric lights were ablaze. The body was taken into a private room by undertakers and embalmers. Mayor Grace, at the request of Col. Grant, Lt. Col. Floyd Clarkson placed upon General Grant's breast the decoration of the Loyal Legion of Honor, and Senior Vice-Commander Johnston fastened by its side a medal of the Grand Army of the Republic. Mayor Grace, accompanied by two ladies, viewed the body before the public were admitted.

IN STATE.

A guard of U. S. Grant Post stood about the head of the coffin on either side. A Legion of Honor guard stood at the head, and members of the National Guard were distributed about the corridor. When the gates were opened a long line of people shut in by files of policemen passed into the portico

Alarming Social Statistics.

San Francisco's record of births, deaths and marriages during the past three years foots up as follows:

| | 1883. | 1884. | 1885. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Births | 1,667 | 1,791 | 1,76[illegible] |
| Deaths | 4,986 | 5,000 | 5,328 |
| Marriages | 2,646 | 2,750 | 2,864 |

The Examiner says: "The above figures are taken from the official records as registered. According to the Census Marshal's reports the births for 1884-5 number 3015."

The above figures, if even approximately correct, are startling in the wide discrepancy they show between the number of births and deaths, the latter exceeding the former three to one. At this rate the city can only keep up its population through immigration. These statistics develope a deplorable state of affairs, socially, in the Pacific metropolis. It is a subject for the serious study of social scientists. Evidently not a proper proportion of people there marry, and only an insignificant proportion of those who do marry produce children The modern system of married people living not in their own homes, but staying in hotels and boarding-houses, and living artificial lives, where the healthful course of nature is constantly and deliberately baffled and defeated—a system which prevails to an unhealthy degree in San Francisco—has clearly been doing its malign work there, as shown by the above statistics. The result is not a pleasant one for the well-wisher of his State and country to contemplate. We fear that the Bay City has degenerated into a modern Sodom and Tomorrow, as Mrs. Partington would say.

A COWBOY recently testified in a Montana court that a "Maverick" was somebody else's calf that you got your brand on first. It took its name from the man who first developed the business.—[Examiner.

Not exactly. A man named Maverick once put some cattle on an island on the gulf coast of Texas, and, being left alone, they became wild, increased greatly, and grew up without brands. Finally, with much difficulty, they were got back to the main, but broke away from their owner and dispersed themselves promiscuously. Thereafter, when a steer without a brand was encountered, he was called a "Maverick," and "obeyed and respected accordingly"—perhaps. So it was not Maverick, but some other fellow, who developed the business of putting your own brand on somebody else's calf. It is well to be particular about these little matters, and give credit where it belongs. There may be honor even among cattle-thieves, and we should be careful about hurting the feelings.

THE San Francisco Examiner is engaged in the work of demonstrating, under four-decker head-lines, the proposition that San Francisco is a healthy city, notwithstanding its neglected sanitary condition. Health Officer Meares comments on the state of Chinatown with respect to its drainage, and scores severely the careless and suicidal neglect of sewerage and school-houses. Wooden sidewalks are condemned, and the sanitary needs of the city generally set forth. It has always seemed to us that San Francisco, with ordinary sanitary precautions, might be made one of the healthiest cities of its size in the world.

MR. BLOOMER's suggestion in regard to opening a registry of Union soldiers in Los Angeles next Saturday, for which reference was made in yesterday's TIMES, was meant by him to include all honorably-discharged soldiers, sailors and marines who served the country during the war, whether now members of the Grand Army or not. This is a very proper qualification. The suggestion is worth acting upon. A similar registry was opened in San Francisco upon the occasion of General Grant's arrival there in September, 1879, from his tour around the world, and a large and interesting list of Union veterans who took part in the receptions was made up and preserved for future reference.

IN a meeting of ex-Confederate soldiers of San Francisco, held last Monday evening to arrange for joining in the funeral procession next Saturday, one of the speakers, C. D. Wheat, made a motion that the ex-Confederates wear a fatigue hat of gray, with a small Confederate flag pinned to the side. Mr. Wheat's motion was, however, not adopted, and very properly so. The meeting finally adopted, as an insignia, a rosette of red, white and blue, fringed with crape, attached to which will be a gray ribbon. The ex-Confederates did well, and showed their good faith, by selecting the national colors. The "stars and bars" have been permanently retired from the stage of action.

IT is said that 35,000 doctors are needed in European Russia alone. Let us, then, not despair of the Republic. The surplus pill-peddlers annually turned out in the United States can be shipped to the Czar's dominions, and this country will be safe, no matter what becomes of the effete despotism where the Northern Bear hibernates.

THE introduction of the telephone system is being agitated at Santa Barbara. It is a step in the right direction, towards which Santa Barbara is generally headed.

LIFE IN GUATEMALA.

The Ancient Capital, Built by Alvarado, the Friend of Cortez.

ABOUT GUATEMALAN HOMES AND HABITS

A Country Like Mexico—The Climate—Barrios and the Central American Republic—A Hundred Churches—Ghosts of Former Greatness.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

GUATEMALA LA ANTIGUA, July 20, 1885.

Such is the similarity between Mexico and Guatemala, in social, political and architectural features, climate, language, religion, literature, that a description of one applies almost accurately to the other. Until 1823 the two countries were under the same government, and together formed the vice-royalty of New Spain. The people of both are mostly the mixed descendants of Spanish conquerors and aboriginal Indians; and though the poor and lowly are in the vast majority as to numbers, they are rigorously ruled by the "upper class."

And now for the inevitable bit of history. As all the world knows, the Guatemalan coast was first sighted by Columbus in 1502, though afterwards the greedy conqueror, Cortez, claimed to have been the original discoverer. In 1524 Guatemala was subjected to Pedro de Alvarado, the trusted friend and lieutenant of Cortez (and a greater rascal never lived), while his chief was conducting a murderous crusade in the domains of Montezuma. This is the same Alvarado who accomplished the famous "leap" of which every schoolboy has read, when the conquerors were fleeing from the Aztec capital before the fury of its outraged inhabitants, and for whom Cortez is said to have shed the only tears of his life, supposing him slain on that memorable noche triste. Unfortunate mistake! for next day Alvarado turned up, and continued his atrocities with unabated zeal.

In 1527 Carlos V. of Spain appointed a Captain-Generalcy to govern all his New World provinces, Pope Alexander VI. having made him master of the "souls, bodies and estates" of any discovered nations within the line his Holiness had obligingly drawn from pole to pole to settle the conflicting claims of Spanish and Portuguese kings. Of the next three centuries of oppression and cruelty—when races and nations were remorselessly cut off and more than fifty millions of people were enslaved under the text "The heathen goes for an inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth as a possession"—it is unnecessary to speak, for the poor Guatemaltecans fared no better than their neighbors of the north, or those of Peru and Santo Domingo. In 1821, simultaneously with Mexico, Guatemala threw off the yoke of Spain and was annexed to the Mexican empire under Iturbide. Upon the fall of this usurper—only two years later—Guatemala became united to the CENTRAL AMERICAN FEDERAL REPUBLIC, until 1839, when the territory of the latter was divided by the secession of Honduras. Eight years thereafter Guatemala separated from the confederation and declared herself an independent republic. During the next decade or two she kept out of the wars which proved so disastrous to the other Spanish-American states; but in '61, while our land was in the midst of its "late unpleasantness," the contagion seized her, and like an aggravated case of ague, has been shaking her interminitently ever since. In '71 the so-called "religious" war broke out, which led to the banishment of the Archbishop, the suppression of the Order of Jesuits, the plundering of churches, convents and monasteries, the flight of President Cerna and his Cabinet and the usurpation of the governorship by the late José Rufino Barrios. Though Guatemala's much-boasted "amended constitution" (revised on the misnamed "Liberal" plan) expressly stipulates for its President but one term of four years, Barrios remained absolute dictator since May, 1873, till he met his death a few months ago in search of more "worlds" to conquer.

The popular idea, that Guatemala is an earthly Hades in climate, is most erroneous. In the interior the thermometer stands throughout the year at about 72° in the shade. At the capital the mean temperature is 65° Fahrenheit—the maximum 87° and the minimum 41°. From May to October heavy rains fall, which however, are mostly confined to the night, morning always dawning clear and beautiful. The clouds—which at first begin to appear late in the afternoon—gradually roll up earlier day by day, till during September the height of the wet season is reached. The rains are heaviest in the tierra templada, and the annual fall at the capital is computed at fifty-four inches. The dry season, which corresponds to a Northern State's winter, is characterized by frequent "northers" and simoons of fine fleas-infested dust. Apparently, these stinging sand clouds have the faculty of penetrating stone walls and steel-clad armor, and the fleas which infest them are the most that ever tortured the human cutis. Fortunately they are seen, though their bites are frequent in the table lands. Sometimes in December water exposed all night to the air acquires a thin coating of ice. The highlanders of Guatemala, like those of the Alps or valleys, are universally prone to goitre, cretinism and kindred complaints, while pneumonia, typhoid and malarial fevers are of yearly recurrence. The marshy lagoons along the Pacific coast are a terror to the unacclimated, being subject to violent heats and deadly diseases; yet one of the healthiest places in the world, particularly as regards to delicate lungs, is the capital of Guatemala. So pure, clear and invigorating is the atmosphere that to breathe it is well worth braving the fiery furnace of the coast-line, which is a veritable Valley of the Shadow of Death, where the destroyer lurks under every leaf in the form of yellow-jack.

The ancient capital, Guatemala la Antigua, is to be distinguished from the modern capital as Cuidad Vieja—old city. It was founded by Alvarado and his followers in 1524, and was known to many generations as

SANTIAGO DE LOS CABALLEROS.

It was built almost upon the slopes of those stupendous volcanoes, Fuego (fire) and Agua (water), the smoke of whose ferment may be seen at any time by passing vessels. Strange to say, the water volcano has wrought more mischief than its fiery neighbor, though it emits nothing but boiling floods and showers of stones. Within seventeen years from the founding of the first city—which was one of the finest Spanish-America has ever seen—the Volcan de Agua suddenly belched forth such a quantity of hot water as to totally annihilate Alvarado's capital. Soon afterwards it was rebuilt, about ten miles from the old site, in even greater magnificence, by proud but impoverished grandees who came swarming from Spain to convert the heathen. They stand without rivals in the history of the world, so far as their powers of "converting" the possessions of others to their own uses is concerned.

The two volcanoes, Fuego and Agua, are about twenty miles apart, and the second city was midway between them. Again, in 1773, Fuego yawned and shook himself like a sleepy monster, giving such a tremor to Santiago de los Caballeros that she fell in pieces at his feet! Its splendid ruins still remain to show travelers what the doughty conquerors could do in the way of palace-building in the wilds and mountains of the new world—and truly the architecture and ornamentation of those crumbling mass and magnificent churches are beautiful beyond description. Again was the site of the unlucky capital changed, and, a little more than a hundred years ago, a new city was founded, twenty-five miles distant, in the Valle de las Vacas (Valley of Cows), which is the present seat of government.

Many of the ruined palaces of La Cuidad Vieja have been repaired, and one prefers by all odds to dwell among its

GHOSTS OF FORMER GREATNESS

—though with the ever-present peril of a boiling bath from Agua or a shaking from Fuego—than in the smarter modern capital. It is the most picturesque of places—here a ruin, there a brand new casa, and anon a partially destroyed palace, whose foundations were laid some hundreds of years ago, but which has recently been rejuvenated to suit the present emergency. There is a wonderful charm about these useless old rookeries, though destitute of every convenience and infested with scorpions, centipedes and other crawling creatures. In such a spook-haunted abode your correspondent lived for many months—or rather, spent the nights, preferring to have her daily being in the shadowy old garden surrounding it. Life never seemed real there, but as if one were moving in a dream—as if the sculptured faces upon the outer walls were in an enchanted slumber, and we about to join their solemn company! Imagine the lagging hours of an endless tropic summer, spent in the sleepy sunshine beneath the pomegranates and lime trees of a Moorish court, lounging by the antique fountain, and surrounded always by an imaginary throng of Spanish knights and dark-eyed señoritas, who went to dust from this trysting-place a few centuries ago! One can almost hear, in the rustling of the limes and the rippling of the fountain, their Ave Marias before the great stone crucifix in its shrine under the olive trees, or an occasional exclamation—San Juan Bautista of San Jago! The Penastivo (thoughful) river, which skirts the city, winds at the foot of that garden, and in its fern-fringed shallows, overhung by tall lilies and broad-leaved rubber-plants, is forever testifying in "thoughtful" murmurs to the appropriateness of its name.

As early as 1533 Alvarado's city was made a bishopric, and when destroyed the second time the population was over 60,000. Before the last earthquake shook it boasted and more than a score of monasteries. The now roofless cathedral is a grand pile, 300 feet long by 120 feet wide, and was lighted by fifty gorgeously-stained windows brought from the mother country. In its palmy days, before the monster Fuego suddenly rendered it an abiding place for bats, the treasures of the sanctury—in gold and silver lamps, chalices and crucifixes, jeweled ornaments and ivory-work, or tistic carvings and antique paintings—can scarcely be computed.

The rebuilding of the town began in 1799, and has steadily continued. It now has several schools and a couple of newspapers, while the "valley of laws" surrounding it is filled with coffee groves and sugar plantations. These fields—for, to-morrow, a dark, glossy green, and the latter showing almost straw-color in the sunshine—are hedged with giant cactii, and have crept fearlessly away up the sides of the two volcanoes.

Traffic is impeded on the Sonora railroad by heavy washouts in the vicinity of Quocobabi.

Caroline, wife of John Heerander, of San Diego, was found drowned in the bay at that place on the 3d.

Reports of the harvest in the Salinas valley are most very encouraging. Grain is not yielding as well as was expected, and the quality is not the best. In San Benito county threshers report better crops than was expected.

On Monday night two women of Eureka, while returning from Arcata in a wagon, ran off a bridge on the road. One of them, named Emma Higgins, was drowned. The other, Aggie Smith, was saved, though badly bruised.

Grasshoppers have nearly disappeared on the plains. But now, from some undiscovered cause, legions of deer, mice and squirrels are appearing in places. Merced needs a wet winter to destroy the vermin that have increased so extensively in consequence of a succession of moderate rainy weather.

The Los Gatos News says: The apricot crop on the Santa Cruz mountains is not up to the average. Chapman prunes about one-sixth of a crop; Bartlett pears, a good crop, and will be late, hence they will bring a good price; French prunes, too full; apples seem not to be doing very well at the summit, at Gus Brown's old place; Muscat grapes on this place will yield more than half a crop, and prunes are full.

CATARRH!

And Consumption are Caused by Atmospheric Germs, While Dwelling into Parasites. These Diseases are

Scientifically Treated By

W. N. DAVIS, M. D., M. C. P. S. O.

Graduate of "Chicago Homœopathic College," Chicago, and "College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario," Canada.

HOMŒOPATHIC SPECIALIST in Diseases of Ear, Nose, Throat, Chest, and all Chronic Diseases.

CATARRH

is caused by the presence of parasites, microscopical in size, in the mucous membranes. The germs are deposited from the air, and become more readily developed and increase more rapidly in systems debilitated from any cause, as in scrofulous subjects and in those suffering from a hyperæmic or torpid liver, which causes the blood to become impoverished.

The catarrh is first located in the anterior part of the nose and the patient seems to have a cold in the head, from which he is scarcely ever free. This gradually extends to the posterior nares and mucous is expelled, sometimes from the throat, from the ear, and in rare cases there is no discharge, a dry sensation in the nostrils alone being present.

In time the mucous membranes become thickened, so that respiration through the nose is difficult or impossible, then the germs are deposited directly into the throat and lungs. This stage of the disease will be noticed by a hacking cough or simply a disposition to clear the throat. Sometimes the throat gives the first symptoms of catarrh, and time as the lungs become in a fit condition for their development. Consumption results, in the result of a severe cold or any debilitating disease, when the germ is able to multiply and spread over its host. Those who are apt to come off at other colds have done and we have a case of Chronic Bronchitis or Cankers of the Lungs, which is often mistaken for consumption and may pass into that disease if not arrested.

Our treatment consists in using such remedies, either in spray or inhalation, as will destroy these germs, and restore the parts to a healthy condition. This gives constitutional medicines a chance to build up the system and our entire climate can better exert its curative influence. This climate alone very often apparently arrests the disease, but there is always danger of a relapse until the cause is removed. Hay Fever Catarrh is frequently cured with one to four applications of medicine. Every lung disease can be cured if taken in time and in hopeless cases life can be prolonged and comfort given to the patient.

Simple Nasal Catarrh and pharyngitis can be treated at a distance by writing for a list of questions, but if lungs are involved an examination at office is necessary.

Consultation and Examination Free.

The following testimonial of a gentleman well known in Los Angeles, who has a law office at 43½ North Spring street, will show how quickly catarrh can be cured:

This is to certify that I am a regularly qualified physician, but not practicing, and have always believed catarrh of the chronic nasal variety to be an incurable affliction, but hearing of Dr. W. N. Davis' new treatment and his success, I applied to him for medicine and determined to try it in the case of one of my friends, and did so with the most satisfactory results, as improvement was immediate, and one prescription effected a cure. The case was of years' standing and of a very severe type. I can recommend Dr. Davis to those similarly afflicted. S. HALEY, M. D.

THE SATCHEL-SNATCHER.

A Lady Robbed on Upper Main Street, Last Night.

Between 8 and 9 o'clock last evening, Miss M. G. Alva, a Spanish lady from San Bernardino, was walking along Upper Main street, near Porter Bros.' establishment. A man was noticed walking along behind her; and near the corner of Virginia street he ran up, grasped her hand-satchel with one fist, and lifted the other with the threat, (in Spanish) "Give me that, or I'll kill you." Securing the satchel, which contained $4.50 and a ticket to San Bernardino, the fellow ran, and at 1:30 this morning had not been captured. He is described by Miss Alva and others who saw him, as short and small, with tall beard not very dark, dark hat, coat and shirt. There is every reason to believe him the same fellow that similarly robbed another lady at the corner of Main and Fourth streets, night before last.

FIRE AND COLLISION.

Neither of Which Did Any Appreciable Damage.

At 3:30 yesterday a workman making some alterations on the covered passage way back of B. Cohn's store, corner of Commercial and Los Angeles streets, dropped a kerosene lamp. It exploded, and a lively blaze was at once started, but A. J. Newton, of Newton, Chaplin & Co., extinguished it readily. The fire department turned out, but was not needed. As the Thirty-Eights engine was going home it slowed up rather suddenly in front of Albert Brown's, and the Thirty-Eights hose cart, which was just behind, ran into it. The driver of the hose cart and its two other occupants were thrown off, but not hurt. Neither the fire nor the collision caused any damage to speak of.

MIGHTY NIMRODS.

Big Battle with a Marine Monster off Santa Catalina Island.

MOST 'STROR'NARY CAPTURE ON RECORD

A Remarkable Land Expedition—Goats Before and Since Mastodons—Mountain Brooks and Silver Falls—A Field for Explorers.

Catching jewfish in the sea off Catalina Island is exciting sport. The jewfish is big game, and can only be taken by a judicious combination of skill, strategy and square open fighting on the part of his pursuers.

A party of jewfish hunters got back from that island Tuesday. It consisted of Hon. George K. Porter, Hon. H. T. Hazard, Colonel H. G. Otis, Jesse Yarnell, S. O. Brown and John T. Wilson. They brought with them two enormous captures of the fish species, taken off shore near Timms's Landing. One of these—the largest—was a most extraordinary capture. The monster was taken only after a severe and exciting battle, in which the dauntless Nimrods took great chances, and won what would be called a handsome victory on the part of fishermen of greater pretensions. The three men in the boat were Porter, Hazard and Yarnell. Porter hooked the jewfish, and was proceeding to haul him in by main strength, when, just as he had got his captive's head to the surface, the monster, struggling more violently than ever, with a vicious jerk snapped the hook and got free. Then occurred an exciting combat. The determined fisherman, having no gaff-hook at hand, but bent on capturing his game at all hazards, fearlessly threw himself across the gunwale of his boat and reached vigorously out for Mr. Fish, and actually, before the dazed monster could make off into the ocean, Porter had thrust his open hand into the fish's mouth and gills, and with the assistance of Hazard, who rushed to the rescue at that instant from the other end of the boat, succeeded in putting another hook into the desperate fellow's big mouth, and thus, with the further aid of a stout rope run through a slit hurriedly made in his nose, they at last secured their ready prey—not, however, till after Porter had failed in a novel and excited attempt to lasso the fish around the tail, and Hazard to assassinate him with a dull butcher knife.

The fish measures six feet eight inches in length, weighs 380 pounds, and has a mouth that will take in an average-sized dog with ease and comfort.

At the most exciting stage of the battle, when Porter, Hazard and the fish were "all in a heap," so to speak, fighting together for dear life over the side, putting the frail craft in imminent danger of a capsize, "Jesse" exhibited his customary presence of mind and practical sagacity by reefing the anchor to save the jewfish from the inconvenience of getting a-foul of it, and further by having his massive form solid upon the starboard side, when the listed craft speedily righted, and all was made safe. This was very thoughtful in Jesse, and he received the unanimous vote of the entire party as a sagacious fisherman and skillful mariner.

The capture was witnessed by the reminder of the party—Brown, Otis and Wilson—from the little sloop Judge, standing a few fathoms away, and also by a couple of Portuguese fishermen in a boat nearer by, who came upon the scene with offers of assistance in the shape of valuable advice, which was boldly disregarded by the intrepid fish-fighters, who followed their own plan of battle, which was to "get the fish" whether or no. They got him. And then how Hazard yelled and Porter gesticulated and roared! When the astonished sons of Portugal returned to camp they were lavish in their excitement and Secretary Spurgeon declares that they never before, in all their fishing experience, saw or heard of such a thing as attacking so big a fish, one of such strength and fighting power, in the open ocean, after he had snapped the hook, and when he might have capsized the boat and disabled one or more of the occupants with a single blow of his ugly tail. They thought the successful men took extraordinary risks; and they were right.

On the following day Porter used the same hook with which he finally got the big one, but had it broken by a much smaller fish of the same sort. The hooks and lines used were of only moderate size.

Hazard, bound not to be outdone by "the gentleman from San Fernando," "stayed with the business" until he, too, had hauled in a "leviathan of the deep"—not as large as the first, but still no minnow, weighing 197 pounds, and capable of overcutting a dory and raising Cain with its occupants had they been men without noble hearts, be it known, is not the case with Admiral Porter and Commodore Hazard. This, too, was a gamey contest. Hazard hauled away on his fish, another interest excitement and a considerable amount of lusty yelling on the part of all hands, until he had the fellow's head above water, when Porter came upon the scene in the nick of time, armed with a powerful gaff-hook, which he proceeded to "seek" into the jewfish's jaw, and his chances of escape were ended.

The fish, being too large to take into ordinary fishing boats, were towed to the shore, there staked out in the surf until the party was ready to return, when they were hoisted aboard the Ida with block and tackle. They arrived in Los Angeles in good condition at 2:30 p. m. on Tuesday, and were placed on exhibition at the Los Angeles Fishing Company's market on Main street, where crowds gathered to see a bigger sensation in the fish line than this city is in the habit of witnessing.

OTHER INCIDENTS.

The party, while absent, caught a variety of smaller fish, and had a hilariously good time camping on the beach, bathing in the sea and sailing on the briny deep. The bathing at Catalina would be exceptionally fine were it not for the pebbly shores and bottom. The water is wonderfully clear, enabling the vision to penetrate easily to the depth of thirty or forty feet, and discern everything going on. The big fish were plainly seen "fooling around" the bait, or making war on the smaller fry.

A notable land expedition was made by three members of the party, upon the recommendation of Hon. E. E. Edwards, of Santa Ana, who was found at the island, and who takes much interest in showing visitors its points of interest. This was a trip to Silver Falls, in the interior of the island. These remarkable falls are located in the depths of a difficult but picturesque cañon, only four miles from Timms's Landing (according to Col. Edwards), and are said to be capable of carrying a vast quantity of water over them. The cañon is described as being lined with a luxuriant growth of wild cherry and willow trees, besides aromatic plants and shrubs of various kinds peculiar to the latitude of Catalina, and is inhabited by numerous wild goats, which afford fine hunting. These agile and capricious beasts spring out of the shady depths of the wild cañon, where cooling streams run their ceaseless course to the sea, and nimbly climb (the goats, not the stream, climb) up the precipitous flanks of the circumjacent sierra, the pursuing hunter finds the blood coursing quicker and warmer in his veins, his fingers itch to get hold of the trigger of his breech-loader, and if he happens to be a novice, the chances of being struck by the "buck fever" are highly numerous.

While the not overly-wild goats are moving deliberately off, occasionally halting and turning about to gaze upon their pursuers with a conundrum-like expression of countenance, they afford plenty of chances for good shots. That it is that the breech-loader may be heard to "ring out on the still noonday air," and the foolhardy cabra can be seen to tumble and roll kicking down the steep hillside, perhaps alighting at the very feet of the proud hunter standing on the moss-fringed banks of the singing stream far below. This goat-hunting is rare and much coveted by Nimrods visiting the island, who are willing to undergo all the fatigue of the trip for the sake of the sport it furnishes. The party's boy-guide killed several on the trip.

The scenery in the interior of the island is rugged and striking, and there is a great quantity of it. There are also spots in those deep cañons (so it is reliably reported) where, by looking straight up, the sun can actually be seen at midday, looking like a speck in the deep blue dome of heaven. This important discovery was made by Mr. Yarnell himself, and can be depended upon as "straight goods."

Next in point of attractiveness to the falls themselves—and the goats—are the mines, located in a branch cañon hard by. These mines consist of two tunnels run into the mountain's side about twenty years ago, in search of argentiferous ore. With remarkable sagacity, worthy of the true mine-locator, the tunnels were obligingly located in convenient proximity to water, though not immediately under the falls, where they might have got flooded. The tunnels were sunk forty or fifty feet, traces of silver and lead discovered, and then, strange to say, the mines were quietly abandoned. The miners didn't seem to like Catalina much after all. The Catalina mountains was too rarefied for them—or something. One of the party whose achievements the TIMES is faithfully recording penetrated the tunnels "with fear and trembling," armed with a candle and a guide, and bore away with him in triumph some glittering specimens, which he is exhibiting on the sly as a basis for the formation of a powerful mining syndicate. With his customary generosity, he has offered to let the members of his party in on the ground floor; and poco tempo we may expect to see the Santa Catalina Island Silver Mining Company (unlimited) projected like a rocket into financial space, unless the Society of California Pioneers cruelly interfere. The island is the property of the Pioneers; it was given to them by the late owner, James Lick. That there is silver and lead there cannot be doubted, for the youthful but reliable guide assured the explorers in the most cheerful manner that the water itself showed traces of these metals. This is undoubtedly what gives it its fine medicinal properties: the sulphate of lead is an excellent "tonic and alterative," as the average mineral-springs circular would put it.

The party that visited Silver Falls cañon on the occasion referred to came back expressing themselves as simply unable to do justice in the way of wordpainting to what they saw; but intending visitors who contemplate this mountain march are especially referred to Colonel Edwards, who should be consulted in advance about the remarkable spot and how best to get there. He is understood to be in possession of some inside information on the subject, and will, no doubt, cheerfully furnish information as to routes, guides, supplies needed by campers, etc. Letters addressed to him at his home, Santa Ana, will doubtless receive attention from the courteous and wide-awake member from the Seventy-eighth Assembly District of California.

To leave Silver Falls out of the Catalina trip, is to reduce it to a mocking delusion.
